Instead of following the numbering system of this outline, the Genealogical Data section of this Genealogy follows the same system of numbers and letters as that used in the Genealogical Data section of the MÜLLER - MULLER - MUELLER and WEBER Genealogies, so that individuals with Roman numbers, capital letters, numerals, small letters, etc. in this genealogy are of the same generation as the corresponding numbers or letters in the MÜLLER - MULLER - MUELLER and WEBER Genealogies.

ELLENBERGER GENEALOGY

HISTORICAL SKETCHES

The earliest records that are available about our Ellenberger forefathers indicate that the family apparently came from Switzerland. According to Ernst Müller in his History of the Bernischen Täufer (Anabaptists in Berne), as well as old documents in the Karlsruhe Archives about the Anabaptists, the name Ellenberger is mentioned among the emigrants enumerated from there. There is no further information available about the settling or branching out of the family in the Palatine electorate.

The first accurate historical information comes from two documents which have been placed in the Mennonite Historical Library, Bethel College, North Newton, Kansas. Written by the same author, whose name is not given, they are based on Jakob Ellenberger's autobiography Mitteilungen aus meinem Leben (Communications about my Life), handwritten by Jakob about 1868.

1. Jakob Ellenberger, Lehrer und Prediger der Mennoniten-Gemeinde Friedelsheim, Ein Lebensbild (Jakob Ellenberger, Teacher and Minister of the Mennonite Church of Friedelsheim, a biography).
2. Aus dem Leben des Jakob Ellenberger, weiland Schullehrer und Prediger in Friedelsheim (Out of the Life of Jakob Ellenberger, Former Teacher and Minister at Friedelsheim).

Jakob's parents were Abraham Ellenberger and Katharina, also an Ellenberger. Jakob describes them as pious and God fearing, and highly respected by the other villagers for their honesty and sincerity. They lived quietly and simply, keeping themselves aloof from everything that was worldly and ungodly. Their Christianity was earnest and sincere; the Bible was their guide; and their faith and love were expressed not only in words, but even more in deeds. The children "imitated their parents with delight and love."

There were five children. Barbara, the oldest, married Christian Ellenberger of Ibersheim, and lived in Gönheim. Both died young, in 1832, when their son was a year old. This boy, later referred to in Mennonite writings as Jakob Ellenberger II, grew up in the home of his uncle, Jakob Ellenberger I. Jakob I's younger sisters, Elisabeth and Katharina, neither of whom married, also made their home with Jakob I, one of them taking the place of a mother for Jakob II. Since Jakob I's only brother died in infancy, and Jakob II had no children, only Jakob I carried on the family line.

Jakob was a schoolboy during the turbulent time of the Napoleonic Wars. He was saved from military conscription by his weak eyes. His desire to become a minister was encouraged by his uncle, Heinrich Ellenberger, who was minister at Eppstein and Friesenheim until 1850, when at an advanced age, he migrated to America and in 1851 organized the Zion Mennonite Church, Donnellson, Iowa, the first Mennonite Church west of the Mississippi River. Through the help of an Englishman named Angas, Jakob was able to study at the Beugen Christian Institute near Basel, Switzerland. In 1827, when his course there ended, he was asked to become the teacher of the newly organized Mennonite school in Friedelsheim, Palatinate, (Germany). In order that the school could receive government approval, he took and passed the teachers' examination at Kaiserslautern and received State certification.

In 1832 he was also called to be the minister of the Friedelsheim Mennonite Congregation, and he remained the well loved, highly respected teacher and minister in Friedelsheim the rest of his life. In addition to his own congregation, he also served the churches at Erpolsheim and Kohlhof, and for a time the congregation at Branchweilerhof near Neustadt. His work in serving all of these places in addition to his teaching duties was physically and emotionally exhausting. However, the number of poems he wrote is evidence that he still made time for creative interests. About the poems he writes, "They helped me through many difficult times and often brought comfort and relief to my burdened heart."

Jakob Ellenberger

Through his own interest in missions, he was instrumental in arousing an interest in missions in the Mennonite congregations in the Palatinate. Christian literature was important to him, and he was a strong supporter of the first Mennonite publications when they began to appear. He helped with the writing of the catechism, the ministers' manual, and the hymnbook, for which he composed several hymns. He also composed a tunebook for the hymnal, in which the chorales were written in four parts.

He especially enjoyed teaching music. His older students and those who had just left school, formed a mixed chorus under his direction, which was in demand at all important meetings in the area. He also stimulated the formation of a Men's Chorus Society, which was well known throughout South Germany.

and his wife
Lisette Blickensdörfer

Jakob and his wife, Lisette Blickensdörfer, had thirteen children, eleven of whom lived to maturity. The concerns for the physical existence of his large family pressed heavily on Jakob. In addition to his small annual salary of several hundred guilders, he received some aid from the Mennonites in Holland, and had a small acreage and a vineyard. After school hours, he often worked at his carpenter bench, making pieces of furniture for his home, to save the cost of buying them.

Although he continued his position as a minister until the end of his life, he retired from his teaching in 1869 because of poor vision. As a state certified teacher, he now received an annual pension of 400 Guilders, and was able to pay off all of his accumulated debts.

After Lisette's death in 1875, Jakob's health began to fail noticeably. On November 18, 1878 he preached his last sermon at the Kohlhof. On February 8, 1879, he quietly "went to sleep".

Marie Griebel, Kindenheim, Palatinate, Germany; b: Aug. 4, 1848
d: Nov. 27, 1922, Kaiapoi, New Zealand

Contact with this family was lost during World War I, and not re-established until 1973 when Jakob's great-grandson, Christopher Hyland and his wife, while living in London, visited the ancestral homes of Friedelsheim and Kindenheim. Christopher's mother, Katharine Hyland of Christchurch, N.Z., furnished the information about the New Zealand Branch.

- a. Adolph Wilhelm Ellenberger, 1 daughter
- b. Marie Christina Ellenberger, 2 sons, 1 daughter
- c. Magdalena Anna Ellenberger, 1 daughter
- d. Katharina Elizabeth Ellenberger, 3 sons, 3 daughter
- e. Charles Christian Ellenberger, 1 son, 1 daughter
- f. Frederick Jacob Ellenberger, did not marry 2. Aug 8 1932
- g. Henry Philip Ellenberger, no children
- h. David Emmanuel Ellenberger, did not marry
- i. Emma Elise Ellenberger, 4 sons, 1 daughter

Although Jakob had five sons, the name Ellenberger died out in this branch. Adolph had only a daughter; Charles had a son, but he was killed in World War I as a young unmarried man; Frederick and David did not marry; and Henry had no children.

- e. Adolf Ellenberger, b: May 31, 1885, Friedelsheim; d: Feb.10,1971 Annaheim CA m: Adele Müller, b: April 27,1884, Waldbrohl; d: July 6, 1966, Annaheim CA USA
 Adolf was a minister at Friedrichstadt, Germany. Adele had been taking care of the young child of an American lady professor, who asked her to come to America with her. Since the salary of a minister in a small Menno-nite church in Germany in the post W.W.I years was not sufficient for a family to live on, Adolf came with them to America, hoping to get a teaching position. At first they lived in Rochester, N.Y., then Adele went with the woman for whom she was working when she moved to California. Adolf later joined them, and they lived the rest of their lives in the Los Angeles area. Sieglinde was born in Germany before they came to the USA. The twins were also born in Germany when Adele had gone back to visit her father.

MONSHEIM BRANCH

10. (Daniel) Adolf Ellenberger, b: March 27, 1846, Friedelsheim, Palatinate
 d: August 13, 1889, Monsheim, Palatinate, Germany Studied theology at the Mission House in Basel, Switzerland, where he learned to know Michael Landes of Albertshausen, a fellow student.
 During a visit at Albertshausen he met Michael's sister Marie, whom he later married. He was minister at the Monsheim Mennonite Church.

(Daniel) Adolf Ellenberger

Marie Landes Ellenberger

m: (Anna) Marie Landes, b: March 24, 1847, Albertshausen, Bavaria
 d: Dec. 10, 1910, Würzburg, Bavaria, Germany
 After Adolf's early death, Marie and the children went to Gelchsheim, Bavaria to live in the home of her sister Babette, Frau Heinrich Horsch.
 She lived there until 1907 when she and her youngest daughter, Selma, moved to Würzburg to live with her son, Heinrich, who was teaching there.

- a. (Jakob) Heinrich Ellenberger, b: Sept. 14, 1875, Monsheim
 d: Aug. 5, 1943, Munich. As the oldest son of a Mennonite minister, he could study at the Mennonite School at the Weierhof free of charge. Since he was already a student there when his father died, he was allowed to continue his studies, and was the only one of the children to be able to get a higher education. He taught in Gymnasiums (equivalent to our high school and Jr. college) at Neustadt, Rosenheim, and Munich, with the title of "Oberstudienrat".
 He was also an artist, producing many paintings, woodcuts, etchings, etc.

- b. Adolf Ellenberger, b: May 31, 1877, Monsheim, Palatinate, Germany
d: July 30, 1959, Thomashof/Karlsruhe, Germany. Had no chance to get an education because of his father's early death. As a teenager he was sent to Bruckberg, a Christian Institution for mentally and physically handicapped men, because of epileptic seizures. These decreased after he was in Bruckberg and later stopped completely, but he remained at the institution as an aid. When Hitler took over Bruckberg, he was able to go to Thomashof, a Mennonite Bible Study and Retreat Center, where he lived until his death. Did not marry.
